

What if you experience sexual harassment?

Sexual harassment is unacceptable in any workplace or educational environment. Towson University has policies and support structures to enable everyone on campus to work and learn in an environment free of harassment. Links to our policies are provided below. You may wish to print out these policies. Refer to them for help in dealing with harassment, concerns or complaints. Here are some additional guidelines should you encounter harassment:

1. Consider firmly, clearly and directly, telling the harasser to stop.
  2. If the behavior continues, document the conversation or offending behavior.
  3. Follow Towson University's complaint procedures provided in these policies. Remember that you have a responsibility to take advantage of whatever resources and procedures your employer provides to protect yourself and your environment from unlawful harassment.
