Path 3: Moving An Entire Course Online

Chair obtains approval of Dean.

Chair or designated person completes Towson University Intent to Develop an Online Course Form, including signature indicating approval of Dean.

Intent to Develop an Online Course Form

Chair specifies, on the form, one faculty course developer for each course who will be assigned to complete the online course process and build the course.

WORKING WITH FACET

Department Chair and Program Coordinator meet with FACET as a group to determine an online program development plan and timeline.

Specified online program faculty meet with FACET Instructional Designer to discuss the online course development process and timeline.

Within a specified period of time, program faculty complete the four Course Design workshop modules. This process includes submitting guided practice activities and completing three online course modules.

21, 12

FACET Instructional Designer reviews and provides feedback on Course Design workshop submitted
guided practice activities and three completed online course modules.

Faculty continues to build the full course in Blackboard Ultra, consulting with the FACET Instructional Designer as needed.

When course is completed, faculty submits Ultra course link to FACET instructional designer for course review. A 30-day review period is requested prior to start of term.

FACET Instructional
Designer provides Course Review
Checklist feedback to faculty with areas highlighted for course improvement, as needed.

Faculty member consults with FACET Instructional Designer on suggested revisions, as indicated, and reports to FACET that the revised course is ready for final review.

FACET Instructional Designer conducts final course review and records completion of Path 3 Online Course Development process.

FACET informs the Faculty, Chair and Dean of successful completion of the process.