

First-Year Experience (FYE) Advising at TU

Program overview:

The FYE program supports our students as they navigate their first year at TU. Each FYE student is paired with an advisor based on their major or special population.

Role of the FYE advisor:

- Provide accurate information about university policies, procedures and academic requirements (including Core Curriculum, graduation, and major department programs)
- Serve as a link between students and the campus community, including helping with transitional issues and understanding of campus resources
- Assist students in identifying and assessing goals and objectives as part of developing an academic plan
- Provide registration information & advice on course selection appropriate to the student's academic plan

Support for FYE advisors:

- 3-day training for new advisors June 8-10, 2022
- Pre-semester meeting for all advisors on August 23, 2022
- In-service meetings for all advisors in October and March
- Advisor Liaisons – each FYE advisor paired with a professional staff advisor from the Academic Advising Center

Timeline of the Academic Year:

August:	Group meeting with students on Friday August 26, 2022
September:	Invite students for individual meetings to get acquainted
October/March:	Group meeting with students to prepare for registration
November/April:	Individual appointments with students to review registration plans and lift advising holds
January/February:	Outreach and intervention for assigned students on Academic Warning

Compensation:

*$4000 for the academic year for a full load of up to 35-40 students

*$2000 for the academic year for a half load of up to 20 students

(*based on projected budget allowances to be finalized in April)

Contact: Emily Halligan, Program Manager / ehalligan@towson.edu / x 2307

Academic Advising Center
Lecture Hall
410-704-2472