

The Asia in Maryland (AIM) Cultural History Project
Spring 2016

Student Research

Student Researcher: Jessica Donnelly

Subject: Asian International Students at Towson University

Jessica investigated the experiences of students at Towson from China, Vietnam and Pakistan. She conducted an oral history with Daniel Andrades who is from Pakistan. Jessica's research helped her challenge her assumptions about international students. Now she will be more inclined to interact with international students, and encourage others to do so, with an open mind. In particular, she will approach them as college students, not international students.

Applications:

Jessica's research added to the AA&CC's understanding of international students from Asia at Towson University. This will inform our approaches to working the International Office and reaching out to these students and integrating them into our work.