MentHER
Connecting Towson University Students to Business Professionals and Aspiring College Students in a Mentor Capacity

A CLOSER LOOK
MentHER is a “pay-it-forward” program which combines networking and mentoring among women of various age groups in the Greater Baltimore area that support growth, learning and empowerment. Professional women will join a growing networking platform, and will be tasked to mentor college students as they prepare to enter the workforce. The college students will in turn take this knowledge and interact with high school students. The college and high school students will participate in workshops, and gain exposure to a variety of industries that will help them establish goals and consider future careers.

The collaborative stream of the MentHER program brings together a diverse group of women representing not only a variety of ages, cultures and backgrounds, but also industries, expertise and career-level. This interwoven network of women benefits all parties involved for professional support, advancement and collaboration.
