Research Pool Sign-up Instructions

The Psychology Department uses a web-based sign-up system for research studies and alternative options. This allows students to sign up for research activities on any computer that is connected to the internet. The system will also keep a record of all the studies you have completed this semester.

Creating a research pool account:

- Using any web browser, go to researchpool.towson.edu
- Click on request account
- Enter your name
- Enter the user id that you use to register for classes (this is the same as the username that is used for your @students.towson.edu email account).
- Student ID number and phone number are not required: You may leave them blank.
- Select the psychology courses that you are taking this semester (be sure to select all of your psychology courses).

You will receive an email with your research pool username and password. Although the research pool system will allow you to select an alternative email address later, this first email will be sent to your @students.towson.edu email address.

If you have any questions on accessing your TU email account, contact the OTS Students Help Center.

Note: If you do not receive a confirmation email within 48 hours of creating an account, you should try again. Make sure you are using the same username that is used for your @students.towson.edu email address.
