21st Annual Ian Moore Memorial Lecture

"A Tale of the Two Moral Cities: Embodied Moral Psychology and The Affective Turn"

Bongrae Seok, Ph.D
Associate Professor
Department of Philosophy
Alvernia University

Thursday, March 28th, 2019
6:00 p.m.,
Liberal Arts Building, Room 4310
Reception to Follow

Dr. Bongrae Seok is associate professor of philosophy at Alvernia University in Reading, PA. He received his BA from Seoul National University (South Korea) and his MA and Ph.D. from the University of Arizona where he studied philosophy and cognitive science. He studied functional specialization of the prefrontal cortex as a postdoctoral research fellow in a neuroscience research lab at the University of Arizona. Currently, he is the chair of leadership studies department and the associate director of O’Pake center for ethics and leadership (at Alvernia University) and the president of ACPA (Association of Chinese Philosophers in America). His primary research interest lies in the interdisciplinary and comparative studies of moral psychology and cognitive neuroscience. He is the author of the books, Embodied Moral Psychology and Confucian Philosophy (2013) and Moral Psychology of Confucian Shame (2016). He also published numerous articles and book chapters.

This event is free and open to the public. The Ian Moore Memorial Lecture is made possible by the Ian Moore Philosophy Fund and is sponsored by the Department of Philosophy and Religious Studies. For further information please contact: Dr. Anne Ashbaugh at 410-704-2750, aashbaugh@towson.edu or Dr. Suk Gabriel Choi, suchoi@towson.edu.