Navkiran Natt is a student-youth activist and film/media researcher who works between Panjab and Delhi, India. She completed her Masters in Film Studies from Ambedkar University, Delhi. She works on transnational migration and its reflections in Panjabi popular culture and media. She also created a podcast series on the Green Revolution's health implications in Panjab with the Goethe Institute. Natt played an active role in organizing grassroots support for Indian farmers’ protest in and around Delhi that started in Aug 2020 and ended in Dec 2021. Currently, Natt is the co-editor of Trolley Times, a newsletter that started from India's ongoing farmers' movement.
